Satellites and forest fires – the first plan

On Wednesday at 10:45, Layla arrived at a youth centre. The group planned to interview a local expert. The first steps worked well, but the situation changed because the planned route was closed. Two pupils suggested different answers. Before choosing, the group checked the available information and spoke to the organiser. It then agreed to choose the marked alternative route. As a result, the group finished its main task. Afterwards, Layla recorded the change and one reason for it. This helped the next group understand both the action and the decision behind it.

Satellites and forest fires – what changed

On Friday at 9:30, Daniel arrived at a small workshop. The group planned to create a clear poster. The first steps worked well, but the situation changed because one participant needed a different entrance. Two pupils suggested different answers. Before choosing, the group checked the available information and spoke to the organiser. It then agreed to use the accessible entrance and add clear signs. As a result, the final poster was clear. Afterwards, Daniel recorded the change and one reason for it. This helped the next group understand both the action and the decision behind it.
